

HEAVY VOTE IN HISTORY EXPECTED TO DAY AS NATION WRITES VERDICT ON NEW DEAL

$300,000 Factory For Making Shoes Will Be Built Here

Modern Plant Is Planned by New J. K. Orr Property Owners on Caroline Street Near Moreland Avenue; Boosts Capacity

WORK WILL BEGIN WITHIN 30 DAYS

Adoption of Ordinance Rezoning Plot Allows Consummation of Deal for Site Now Vacant.

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.

Work on a new $300,000 shoe factory to be erected in Atlanta by the Edgewood Shoe Factories will begin within 30 days, C. W. Butler, general manager, announced following the passage yesterday by city council of an ordinance rezoning property on Moreland avenue and Caroline street. Capacity of the new plant will handle 5,000 pairs of shoes daily.

The factory will be erected on Caroline street, N. E., south of the Georgia railroad and near Moreland avenue.

Edgewood Shoe Factories, a division of the General Shoe Corporation with headquarters in Nashville, is now operating in the city at 15 Yonge street, being generally known as the J. K. Orr Shoe Company. The Orr company was purchased six months ago by the General Shoe Corporation and has been operated by its Edgewood company since. The Yonge plant will be used in the future as the company's office and warehouse, Butler said.

Change Unopposed.

Plans for the company's expansion in Atlanta were made definite yesterday after the council action adopting an ordinance recommended by the rezoning commission changing the proposed site of the plant from residential to industrial property.

The ordinance, adopted without dissent, was reported by the rezoning commission.

Sale of Beer to Boys Laid to Tavern Owner

First arrest by city police in juvenile court Judge Garland M. Watkins' campaign against the sale of wine and beer to minors was reported early last night by officers who took into custody T. R. Mullinax, 27, proprietor of a tavern at 823 Bankhead avenue.

Radio Patrolmen J. M. Jones and J. C. Hopkins said Mullinax was arrested on complaint of the parents of Fred Medley, 16, of 635 Jett street, and Robert Norton, 15, of 1033 Hopkins street. The tavern keeper, they said, allegedly sold beer to the boys Sunday night.

In addition to charges of selling beer to minors, Mullinax was also charged with possession of punchboards, police said.

Mullinax posted a $100 bond.

MARINE STRIKERS EXTEND BLOCKADE TO ALL U. S. PORTS

Order Affects Every Pacific Coast Ship Wherever It May Be; Unions Defy Federal Hearing.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Striking Pacific coast maritime unions extended their blockade order tonight to all United States ports.

The order affecting Pacific coast ships wherever they may be, except those outboard from Honolulu for coast ports, was issued after union representatives caused indefinite postponement of a United States Maritime Commission hearing here by walking out.

In issuing the "new policy instructions," the joint coastwise policy committee for the seven unions, also urged east coast workers to adhere to sympathy "sit downs" on other American ships.

"It is not our intention," said the order signed by F. M. Kelly, secretary of the committee, "to tie up the whole world, but it is our intention to get the demands for which we struck."

He declared the decision to extend the blockade was caused by "the arbitrary attitude adopted by the employers."

The number of strike-bound ships along the coast had reached at least 145, with others due for tie-up as they reached ports.

Five unions walked out of a government hearing here today, declaring they "cannot recognize the authority of the Maritime Commission to determine any of the issues in dispute" in the spreading maritime strike.

The walkout was led by the Sailors' Union of the Pacific after Rear Admiral Harry G. Hamlet called the session to order and asked for opening statements from both sides.

"Sitdown" strikes by our seamen's faction in New York forced cancellation of sailings of the International Mercantile Marine's trans-Atlantic liner, Manhattan, and the Panama Pacific.

$37,080 AWARDED FOR SEWER PLANT

Court Battle Predicted Over Diversion of Bond Premiums to Treasury.

CITY COUNCIL yesterday voted $37,080 to insure award of a contract for construction of the R. M. Clayton disposal unit for the city's $8,000,000 sewer program.

Council's action in setting up the necessary supplementary funds in order that the Clayton project would not be delayed was taken despite a controversy over diversion of $92,100 in sewer bond premiums into the city treasury, which the bond commission contends was done illegally. The $92,100 issue is still unsettled, however, and a court battle was predicted.

Regulation of sales of wines and beer consumed much of council's time, and a midnight curfew law was passed following a recommendation of the public safety committee. At midnight, all sales of such beverages must stop, but establishments where they are sold may remain open. Fines not exceeded.

Cobb Says: Sanity Comes Back Today

By IRVIN S. COBB.
(Copyright, 1936, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—We're practically done with conflicting key votes, so far apart that only by the utmost forbearance have punsters refrained from calling them the north poll and the south poll; done also with the blash and the bunkum, the bosh and the balloons, the bawling and the backbiting, the boobing and the belittling.

A few hours more, and the predictor will quit predicting and the orator will quit his tired jargon back in storage and campaign buttons will be about as much in demand as Christmas trees on the morning of December 26. We'll be recovering our sanity and wondering why we ever lost it. We'll have time to start brooding again on Mrs. Simpson. Seems like I can hardly wait.

One fine thing stands out: More citizens have taken an interest in this business of choosing a government than ever before. And when we remember that only one presidential election was ever stolen—that's something to be proud of.

With all its surface madness, our plan of naming those who shall rule over us appears to be the best yet devised. The founders of this republic may have had poor teeth and sometimes rude ways, but those old boys certainly showed right smart sense.

CHECK-UP REVEALS PRESIDENT TO WIN BY WIDE MARGIN

All Signs Point to a Democratic Landslide; Landon Victory Would Be 'Upset of the Century.'

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—As the nation prepared to go to the polls in another record-breaking vote, a recapitulation tonight of the results in the several major straw ballots and the opinion of leading political experts shows that President Roosevelt is favored to win the election tomorrow by a wide margin.

All the signs point to a Democratic landslide which many feel will equal, if it does not actually exceed Mr. Roosevelt's striking victory over Herbert Hoover four years ago in terms of electoral votes.

Save for the Literary Digest, all of the accepted nation-wide polls predict the President's re-election. Practically all of the leading newspapers of the country, in their final campaign summaries printed Sunday, give Mr. Roosevelt the edge, while among the newspaper writers who have toured up and down the land in an attempt to appraise the popular trend the opinion is very near unanimous that Governor Alf M. Landon, the Republican nominee, will run a poor second.

Recalls Georgia Race.

In many respects the situation found in rival camps here today is similar to that which prevailed in Atlanta on the night before the Georgia September primary. Then the Tammany-Roosevelt forces were hopeful of a narrow victory, looking forward to the election, whereas the Russell-Rivers ticket was proclaiming a landslide. Privately, the most optimistic of the Landon well-wishers concede that the Republican candidate has hopes of winning by a small majority at best, but the Roosevelt claims run all the way from 400 to 500 of the 531 electoral votes.

To put it another way, a Landon

ASSAULTS BY REDS PROBED IN FRANCE

Meeting of Blackshirts in City of Chambéry Ends in Street Fighting

PARIS, Nov. 2.—(AP)—French officials, apprehensive of possible international repercussions, pushed an inquiry tonight into assaults by Communists on Italian Fascists at Chambéry.

Investigators declared the prefect of Savoie department warned the Blackshirts not to hold a meeting which ended in street battles in which five Fascists, including the Italian consul, were injured.

On their side, the Italians asserted they received permission for the assembly from the mayor of Chambéry.

A 20-year-old plaster worker, named Perrotin, was instructed to be ready to appear before a court for questioning in the incident.

An Italian official indicated the embassy was considering lodging a protest with the French foreign office.

The complaint, presumably, would deal with both the Chambéry fighting and the shooting of Antonio Bertazzoni, an Italian subject, at Metz October 9.

The controversy added new chill to Franco-Italian friendship, which Premier Mussolini described as "freezing" in a speech at Milan yesterday.

However, the newspaper Le Temps described the coolness between the two European nations as "superficial."

Informed quarters expressed belief that Ducloux's speech only accentuated the growing rift between the Paris and Rome governments.

Three factors have contributed to the strain, these sources asserted. The first is the Italian demand for Italian troops against Italy for her aggression in Ethiopia, conflicting viewpoints over the League of Nations and the recent drift of Italy toward Germany.

45,000,000 Voters To Name President, 467 Lawmakers and 35 Governors; Leaders Appeal for Big Georgia Vote

Entire Democrat Ticket Certain To Sweep State, But Importance of Heavy Total for Roosevelt Is Stressed on Election Eve

515,000 MAY VOTE IN STATE'S BOXES

Constitutional Amendments Provide Only Issue in Doubt as Georgians March to Polls.

Democratic leaders last night were confident President Roosevelt and the entire state ticket would sweep Georgia in today's balloting, but they continued their silence on the proposed constitutional amendments which are to be decided on in the election.

Governor-nominee E. D. Rivers closed the state campaign with an appeal for a full vote today, asserting the President will carry Georgia more than 6 to 1 and predicting that opposed Democratic candidates for congress would be elected without difficulty.

The governor-nominee made his appeal in a radio address broadcast over station WSB from Atlanta. He made a brief report on his campaign trip through Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, predicting that the Democratic party will sweep "all four states."

"Nothing But Landslide."

"I can see nothing but a Roosevelt landslide," he declared. "The people are going to make tomorrow's voting an appreciation of what our great President has done for the common man in his four years in office."

Mr. Rivers left immediately after the speech for his home at Lakeland where he and Mrs. Rivers will cast their ballots today. Senator and Mrs. Walter F. George are at home at Vienna to vote, while Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. will vote at Windsor. If Governor Talmadge votes it will be at his home at McRae. He was unable to get home to vote in the primary and it could not be learned last night if he would be at McRae today. The Governor was a strong critic of President Roosevelt before the campaign.

Eugene Harrington, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, was nominated for a second year's term in that office at a dinner last night at the Piedmont Driving Club, planned as a surprise gesture of appreciation for the work he has done this year.

Preston Arkwright, chairman of the nominating committee, in announcing that the committee unanimously recommended that Mr. Harrington be drafted for another year's service as president, stated Harrington not only had reorganized the chamber, but had reawakened among Atlanta businessmen the famous "Atlanta spirit" of old and that he had put under way too many important jobs for the benefit of the city to permit any other Nominee and Aides Sum Up Issues and Warn of a Grave Responsibility.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Governor Alf M. Landon tonight urged the nation's citizens to go to the polls tomorrow "resolved that the American way of life shall not fail."

The Republican presidential nominee, in a final appeal to the electorate, expressed confidence they would be united in one aim—"to vote as Americans for the future of America."

Secluded in his study in the Governor's mansion at Topeka, Kan., the candidate concluded his long campaign by joining a dozen other supporters of the Republican cause in a nationwide election eve broadcast.

"It is the basic principle of the American form of government that so long as our citizens understand the issues that are before them, their decision will be the right decision," he said. "I am confident that the people understand the issues."

"We face tomorrow a grave responsibility. This responsibility is not only to our well-being in the years just ahead, it is a responsibility to the ideals of free and popular government upon which our nation was founded. It is a responsibility to a world which stands at a parting of the ways. The world needs a free America. We must hold the line of democracy. We dare not fail."

TINY N. H. VILLAGE

5 TO 2 FOR LANDON

MILLSFIELD, N. H., Nov. 3. (Tuesday)—(AP)—This town because the first community in the United States to complete tabulation of votes today in the presidential election, giving five votes to Governor Alf. M. Landon and two to President Roosevelt. This town is in the northeast corner of the state.

Five voters, three men and two women declined to vote.

The town's voting population gathered in a small shop, temporary town hall, at midnight and promptly at 12:01 a. m. began casting their votes.

Voting "Score Card" in Page 7.

By The Associated Press.

In his own quiet way, the sovereign voter decides today whether the New Deal should have another four years at Washington.

After months of thunderous and bitter dispute over whether President Roosevelt has been saviour or destroyer, and whether election of Governor Landon would mean progress or a step backward, the judgment will be handed down by the people. In over 122,000 polling places they will register their preference from before dawn in the east until after sundown on the Pacific coast.

On the collective will in this 38th national election depends not only who will be inaugurated president on January 20, but who will govern in 33 states, who will occupy 35 seats in the senate, which party will control the house of representatives, and innumerable lesser questions of office and social policy in the state governments.

Thirty-five senators and 432 members of the house of representatives will be elected.

Snow, Rain Forecast.

All sides have portrayed the decision as momentous for the country's destiny. Candidates have advocated consideration of the issues and "the record" on a plane above partisan lines. The major parties are divided. Despite forecasts of snow and cold in much of the midwest and north-west and rainstorms in the east, preparations for a tremendous turnout have been made. Registrations increased some 16 per cent on the average, leading to an extension of voting time in New York, for example, from 6 to 9 p. m. to accommodate the

LEAF WAREHOUSE ACT UPHELD IN U. S. COURT

Judges Uphold Georgia's
Right to Set Fees for Handling Tobacco.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Nov. 2.—(AP)—A three-judge federal court in a two-to-one decision today upheld the right of the state of Georgia to fix maximum fees which warehousemen charge for handling the state's tobacco crop.

It held that the warehouse business as conducted in Georgia is "such as to cause it to be affected with a public interest and clothed with a public use."

The opinion added that the 1935 legislative act fixing warehouse fees was not confiscatory, and that it did not infringe either on the constitutional rights of the warehousemen, or their status as persons engaged in interstate commerce.

To Appeal Case.
William Hart Sibley, one of the attorneys for the warehousemen, announced in Atlanta that the case would be carried to the United States supreme court.

The majority opinion, by Judge W. H. Barrett, of the southern district of Georgia, and Judge E. R. Holmes, of the fifth United States circuit court of appeals, New Orleans, said the complainant warehousemen through the Warehousemen's Association and their common agreement as to the fees to be charged by them for services rendered maintain and enjoy a virtual monopoly in the field covered by their operations.

In his dissenting opinion, Judge Bascom Deaver, of the middle district of Georgia, said he found no monopoly on the part of the warehousemen, that "the evidence does not show any conspiracy between the companies (that is, the large tobacco companies that purchase the bulk of the tobacco) and the warehousemen," and that "the warehouse business is a wide-open field and anyone with even modest capital may enter it."

Operation of the fee law was enjoined by warehousemen of Georgia before the 1935 auction season opened. The injunction remained in force during the 1936 season, when tobacco sales in Georgia exceeded $18,000,000.

BRASWELL DEEN SEES
"SWEEPING VICTORY"

ALMA, Ga., Nov. 2.—Representative Braswell Deen of the eighth Georgia congressional district, returned today from New England, where he has been campaigning under the auspices of the Democratic national committee.

"The Republicans are centering their fight around New England and they may make some inroads there," the congressman said. "However, the President will sweep to victory over the nation. I am confident of that."

Congressman Deen has Republican opposition in the person of Ben J. Ford, of Brunswick, but he has not campaigned against Ford.

"If my record does not entitle me to re-election I am willing to go down in defeat," he said. "I believe the people of my district appreciate my service and will return me to congress by a handsome majority."

NURSES' CONVENTION OPENS AT COLUMBUS

Movement for Shorter Hours To Be Discussed at Tomorrow's Session.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 2.—(AP)—With an attendance of at least 200 members, the thirtieth annual convention of the Georgia State Nurses' Association opened here this morning, with the nurses starting a three-day session that is filled with business meetings and social functions.

Much interest was manifested in the movement for shorter hours for members of the profession and the resolutions committee, which will report Wednesday morning will probably bring in a resolution for the consideration of the convention, leaders said.

After the opening business session, the private duty section of the state association and the G. L. N. E. held business sessions until noon.

The convention was addressed this afternoon by one of its honor guests, Miss Ruth Heintzelman, regional consultant on nursing, Children's Bureau, Department of Labor, Washington, who spoke on "Social Security," explaining Title 5 of the act, which has to do with maternal and child health services and services for crippled children.

She estimated that there are from 300,000 to 500,000 of the latter in the United States.

Miss Heintzelman told the nurses that the part of the act she was speaking on had a two-fold purpose. First, the reducing of the maternal and infant mortality rate of the nation, and second, the rendering of more efficient service to the crippled children.

She stated the work presented a challenge to the nursing profession.

The Red Cross memorial service was held this afternoon. Tribute was paid to Miss Clara Dutton Noyes, late director of the Red Cross nursing convention. Another honor guest, Miss Annabelle Peterson, of Washington, D. C., paid the tribute. Later Miss Peterson was the principal speaker on the Red Cross program.

The visitors were guests of the Muscogee Medical Society at a tea at the country club late this afternoon.

Miss Susan Francis, president of the American Nurses' Association, was the principal speaker at the opening session tonight. Mrs. Paul Karkas, of Albany, president of the Georgia State Nurses' Association, in her response to the address of welcome at the opening meeting, said the nurse's profession is "above all constructive, not destructive."

"We have been taught," she said, "that such qualities as patience and understanding, cheerfulness and tact are indispensable in the nurse's room. They are equally essential in our contacts with the world at large, for before we were nurses we were and still are women."

When he and the late Mrs. Patton came to Marietta the membership of the church was 160. Since that time, he points out, the equivalent of almost two entire memberships in his church have either died or moved away. The rolls of the church now record 422 members.

Dr. Patton says the time, seven years ago, when he came here, when his congregation gave him a three-month trip to Palestine and Egypt, was the high spot of his pastorate in the early days.

The pastor has attended every meeting of the synod since coming here, a total of 46, and has missed only three meetings of the presbytery.

He says of his congregation: "There has never been a contention that has disturbed the church."

The record figures also helped to swell the clearings for the first 10 months of 1936 to $30,892,218.14, a gain of $5,090,792.30 over the same period of last year.

Suit for Charter To Stand in Court.

TIFTON, Ga., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Judge R. Eve unwound a legal snarl today that had developed over the application for a new state bank here and ordered hearings to proceed on whether a charter would be granted.

The case grew out of the application of Mrs. Susan T. Moore and others for a charter for the "Tifton State Bank."

R. E. Gormley, then state superintendent of banks, denied the application, and Mrs. Moore and her associates resorted to the courts to force him to grant their request.

Before a hearing on the case, Governor Talmadge removed Gormley, who was holding over beyond the expiration of his term, and appointed R. R. Tipping superintendent.

Tipping entered a written consent to an order against the state banking department, but Assistant Attorney General Dave Parker, who is assigned to the banking department, protested.

Parker contended the suit had no standing in court, but also filed an answer setting up reasons why the charter should be denied should the suit stick.

A hearing on those legal complications was held October 24 before a three-judge court composed of Judge Eve, Judge Ozlen Persons, of the Flint circuit, and Judge A. J. McDonald, of the Cordele circuit.

Judge Tipping's written consent to an order commanding the granting of the charter was denied. That the suit be allowed to stand in court. That a hearing be held, on a day yet to be named, on the right of Mrs. Moore and her associates to demand a charter.

No recognition was taken by the court on a later application of Mrs. Moore and other associates for a charter for "The Farmers Bank of Tifton."

"I Owe All My Success to Edwards Shoes"

We got this statement from the young man just after he had finished cutting a new tooth on his shoes. But that isn't all he uses them for. His prowess in walking, his sturdy stance, and his practically never-falling-down record (so he tells us) are due entirely to his Edwards shoes. He recommends them to all young men and women getting on their feet for the first time. White or brown elk with flexible welt soles in suede finish to prevent slipping. Sizes 3 to 6. Texas, that Frank B. Whitaker has agreed to return his 7-year-old son, Frank B. Whitaker, to his divorced wife, Mrs. Virginia White Whitaker, Cal Cates and H. H. Green, Fulton county policemen, who went to Houston last week to bring Whitaker and the kidnapped boy back to Atlanta, returned here yesterday, confident that the case has been happily ended, but without the boy.

"Whitaker refused to send the boy with the officers," said Kenneth A. Campbell, one of Mrs. Whitaker's attorneys, "but he has agreed to send the child later in the week in care of his mother, the child's grandmother." Acting Governor Woodul, of Texas, in revoking the extradition proceedings against Whitaker, according to Campbell, stipulated that Whitaker should return the boy to Atlanta and never molest the child without proper order from a court, which means a Fulton county court where Mrs. Whitaker obtained her divorce and was given custody of her son.

Complaints against Whitaker are being held up pending the boy's return. "Mrs. Whitaker is satisfied if her son is restored to her," said Campbell yesterday. "She has no desire to prosecute the father as long as he makes no further attempt to molest the boy."

Whitaker, a Texas pipe line company employee, had been indicted for kidnapping here on the charge that he lured the boy away from his home at 908 Juniper street and took him to Texas.

RATE CUT AUTHORIZED ON GEORGIA PRODUCTS

MOTORCYCLE SKIDS, PATROLMAN INJURED

Woman and 3 Children Hurt
as Auto and Truck
Crash.

Motorcycle Patrolman U. G. Oakes, 29, of 689 Grant street, suffered a fracture of the nose and lacerations of the head and body yesterday afternoon when he was thrown from his motorcycle as it skidded in a quick stop to avoid a collision with an automobile.

Oakes and his partner, Motorcycle Patrolman E. A. Dorsey, were proceeding west on Georgia avenue, near Crew street, when an autoist pulled out from the curb, precipitating the accident. Oakes was taken to Grady hospital, treated and dismissed.

In a crash earlier in the afternoon between an automobile driven by Mrs. F. L. Williams, of 1381 Morningside drive, and a truck driven by Henry Newman, negro, Mrs. Williams and three children were injured.

The accident occurred at Lanier boulevard and Morningside drive. The children hurt were Helen Almand, 4, daughter of Bond Almand, assistant city attorney; Margaret Virginia Ware, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Ware, of 858 East Rock

Big Top's Entry Spectacle Demands Minute Behind-the-Scenes Detail

There's a lot going on in the backyard of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus just before the grand entry of the Durban, the opening spectacle of the performance, and a little portion of the stirring activities is the acrobatic of the elephants and getting the pretty girls in place who ride in howdahs atop their swaying backs.

Of course, the elephants kneel on all fours when the heavy howdahs are set on their backs, but they must rise so that the men can cinch them. Hence, ladders are used for the girls to climb to their seats.

Meanwhile, hundreds of mounted men and women are assembling, teams of elephants, zebras and camels are hitched to jeweled floats, and marching people are filling by the wardrobe workers to receive banners, plumes, ostrich-feather fans, lances, shields and mantles.

When the Greatest Show on Earth comes to the Highland avenue grounds Wednesday and Thursday, you'll be astounded at the volume of resplendent contingents of people and animals that emerge from the backyard through the back doors, or performers' entrances, into the vast big top.

And you'll know instinctively, in spite of the colorful action back of the scenes, that an exact system accounts for the magnitude and smooth execution of the "march past," with its African pique elephants, its ponies, 1,000 people, seven herds of big elephant actors, hundreds of menagerie animals and horses.

ple in the Legion and in our democratic form of government.

"The American Legion is opposed to Communism. But there is nothing which even remotely implies that we should suspend the constitution of the United States, violate the principles of our own organization, and use force or violence or intimidation to suppress any group."

"Our opposition to Communism is based primarily on the fact that it seeks to overthrow our form of government by force or violence. Now, then, can we hope to accomplish our purpose if we resort to force or violence? When we do we not only descend to the level of Communists, but we play squarely into their hands. We prevent the law from taking its course. We give aid and comfort to the Communist party in America by furnishing it with publicity it otherwise would not have."

Colmery Says Members
Should Not Use Violence
To Suppress Anyone.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 2.—(UP)—Reported participation of Legionnaires, as individuals, in several acts of violence against Communist speakers was denied tonight by Harry W. Colmery, national commander of the American Legion.

Writing in the National Legionnaire, official publication of the organization, Colmery said on the topic of "Let's Be American."

"Within the month, according to press reports, there have been instances in several parts of the country where mob tactics have been employed to break up meetings where Communist representatives were to speak in person or by radio.

"Unfortunately, either rightly or wrongly, Legionnaires are reported to have been associated with them. In the absence of a competent investigation, I shall not particularize; but I do feel that it is essential that I should take cognizance of a situation which, if it persists, not only will do immeasurable harm to the Legion but will undermine the faith of the people in the Legion and in our democratic form of government."

CHINESE WAR LEADER IS TAKEN BY DEATH

SHANGHAI, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Tuan Chi-jui, former premier of China who was responsible for China joining the allied side in the World War, died today. He was 72.

Tuan held two important government posts in 1917 when his nation declared war against Germany. Appointed premier in 1916, he took over the additional duties of the war ministry a year later expressing strong favor for Chinese support of the allied cause.

He held the double appointment through the war and in 1919 became director general of the frontier defense bureau.

His highest office was provisional chief executive of China, a post he held during 1924 and 1925. In 1925 he retired from active political life and has lived in seclusion since.

Edward To Appear in Parliament
First Time as King at Opening Rite

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(AP)—King Edward is scheduled to appear in parliament for the first time as sovereign to open the new session tomorrow.

He is to make the declaration of Protestant faith required of all British monarchs. According to law each British ruler must make the pronouncement either during the coronation ceremony or at his initial meeting with parliament on which event comes first. The coronation has been set for next May.

Speaking from the throne in the house of lords, King Edward is to repeat the centuries-old oath:

"I do solemnly and sincerely in the presence of God profess, testify, and declare I am a faithful Protestant, and that I will, according to the true intent of the enactments which secure the Protestant succession to the throne of my realm, uphold and maintain the said enactments to the best of my powers according to the law."

As the king is a bachelor, it is planned to have him alone on the dais. The throne which Queen Mary occupied on the occasions when Edward's late father, George, opened parliament was removed several months ago.

Also because there is no consort, it is understood the Duke of Beaufort, master of the horse, will ride with him in the state coach from Buckingham palace to Westminster. The coach is the one in which King George rode to his coronation.

Parliament faces a heavy program. One of the major items is the task of financing the government's plans for large-scale rearmament.

The government also seeks legislation to prevent disorders at public meetings and to regulate the wearing of political uniforms, as the result of the recent Fascist-Communist rioting in London's Jewish east end.

Although Sir Oswald Mosley's British Union of Fascists has been the principal uniformed organization involved in street demonstrations, legislation will be aimed at the extremists of both wings, it is understood.

In some quarters it has been reported the government will propose legislation along two lines to cope with the Rightist-Leftrightist troubles:

1. Prohibition of political uniforms.
2. Granting of discretionary powers to police to close prescribed areas to political demonstrations.

LIABILITY RATE HIKE IS ORDERED FOR CITY

'Ambulance Chasers,' Fake Claims Cited as Reason for Increase.

"Ambulance chasing lawyers" and damage claims were cited by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters yesterday as being partly responsible for an increase in public liability rates for Atlanta which went into effect yesterday.

The rate hike affects only the insurance inside the city limits of Atlanta and the old rate will continue throughout the remainder of the state, the bureau announced.

"Atlanta's unfavorable record in owners' liability and tenants' liability has forced an increase for this type of protection," the bureau stated. The increase affects approximately 100 classifications in risks written on apartments, tenements, mercantile and office buildings, clubs, hotels, schools, churches and stores.

Claims Boost Rate.

Insurance men explained that this type of insurance is known as "premises coverage," and applies to accidents to persons on premises, such as falls, etc. Rates for this type of insurance maintained a level for about 10 years, but an increase in the number of claims resulted in the increase.

It also was pointed out that less than 20 per cent of properties in Atlanta are insured under "premises coverage." Such coverage outside the city is a negligible amount, insurance men said.

Stating that the increase partly results from the volume of business carried on in the city and also from deterioration of property, the bureau pointed out that Atlanta has had an increase in the number of damage claims and losses therefrom.

Drive by Boykin.

Since the city's risks have been "adverse" for several years, the national bureau has created a separate Atlanta territory for rate-making purposes.

The national bureau is aware that in Atlanta a citizens' committee and the solicitor general, John A. Boykin, are making sincere efforts to eradicate fraudulent and unethical practices in the prosecution of liability claims," it was stated. "This effort has had a splendid beginning. If its continued success helps to bring about a decrease in the number and cost of owners' liability and tenants' liability insurance claims, these results will be reflected in terms of decreases in rates."

Though Solicitor Boykin could not be reached for a statement, it was said the "same vigorous prosecution" of fake damage claim racketeers in Atlanta will continue. Several lawyers and other individuals already have been convicted by Boykin in his campaign against the racket.

400 WORKERS STRIKE AT MINNEAPOLIS MILL

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 2.—(AP)—More than 400 workers of the Pillsbury, a mill, went on strike today in protest against the action of the Pillsbury Flour Mills Company Saturday in laying off 128 men at the plant.

The men were laid off, mill officials explained, because of the decline in flour production resulting from the shortage of this year's wheat crop in the northwest.

Two hundred pickets surrounded the plant in an orderly demonstration. Flour, feed, cereal and elevator workers' union No. 19152 demanded, in negotiations last week, that the company reduce work days to six hours per than lay off the 128 workers and keep the remainder on eight-hour days. About 15 men entered the mill to day but others were stopped at the picket line. There was no attempt to operate the mill.

Tech Opens Week With Hard Scrimmage for Auburn Game

BREAK O'DAY!
By Joseph McBee

As Mr. W. A. Alexander and his aides start to the Rose Bowl field for practice every day there is a little ritual followed.

The car, in which the newspapermen are piled along with the coaches, halts at a drug store and the occupants indulge in a well-known soft drink. From there the car proceeds to the practice field.

Yesterday as they left the dressing quarters, Mr. Alexander waved and a large truck moved up.

"Get in," said Mr. Alexander, and motioned toward the section of the truck usually reserved for bricks, sand or other building material.

And in we piled. And off we went. As we headed for the Rose Bowl field, Mr. Alexander said:

"Drive down that street which is paved with cobblestones." And we did.

Sitting in a truck going over cobblestones gives an almost perfect reproduction of what one would feel if one were being kicked in the heel of the pants, rapidly and for a long time.

When we got to the field the big idea had sunk in. I did not ask Mr. Alexander or his aides one single word about the Clemson game.

I was afraid we'd have to ride back over the cobblestones. In the truck.

BEHIND THE SCENES.

Yesterday I watched the Tech team preparing for practice. It might have been any team. The scene always is the same. At any dressing room.

There were the therapeutic lamps—sending heat and healing rays down an injured knee.

Another boy sat on the edge of a bathtub, soaking an ankle in hot water—water kept hot by a flow of hot water. On rubbing tables knees were being wrapped, ankles were being taped.

Small raw spots were being dabbed with iodine and covered with protecting gauze.

College officials take no chances with infection, check every injury carefully—which explains why rarely, in comparison with high school and sandlot football, does the college game produce a fatality.

As I said, this might have been any college football dressing and training quarters. Football is a game of bodily contact. Knees, ankles and shoulders will get bruised and hurt. The old epidermis will get peeled and barked.

Another newspaperman and I stood looking.

"What," said he, "would the businessman do if he had to go through all this every day in order to do his job?"

There wasn't any answer. When the football team trots out on Saturday the picture is a pretty one. But beneath the uniforms there is many a piece of gauze, many a yard of tape and many an ache not yet healed.

A LITTLE PROBLEM.

Another little item more or less behind the scenes was this: Red Collins, one of the Georgia Tech backs, is recovering from an injured leg. He may or may not be ready on Saturday.

That presents a coaching problem. It is one the public can't possibly see or know about. Yet it may have a very definite influence on the outcome of the Auburn-Tech game on Saturday.

If Red Collins can play on Saturday the work for the Auburn game will take a certain trend. If he can't play then it must take another.

Just now it appears Collins will be able to play. The work will be based on that idea. We will suppose that on Wednesday or Thursday he is hurt in practice. The week's work will have to be hurriedly reversed and other plans made.

That all comes under the heading of scarcity of material.

AS TO SCRIMMAGE.

Now and then criticism is heard that a coach scrimmages his team too much.

All coaches scrimmage their teams. Now and then a coach attains a certain amount of publicity by stating he doesn't believe in scrimmaging.

Well, few coaches like it. But all coaches, even the one who doesn't believe in it, scrimmages his teams. Only in doing may they learn. Only in carrying out plans are they made perfect.

The coach with an experienced team needs to scrimmage but little. Bernie Bierman, at Minnesota, scrimmages no more than once a week and that, perhaps, not very long. He doesn't need it. Yet, I imagine this week Bernie Bierman will scrimmage a couple of times.

On the other hand, the coach with a green, inexperienced team must, of necessity, scrimmage a great deal more than the coach who has experienced players.

STRIKE ME PINK.

Relaying negatives of news pictures by homing pigeons is nothing new in the newspaper business. It has been done by various newspapers in New York. But the Times-Picayune, in New Orleans, is one of the first papers to employ pigeons in the south and the first one anywhere to use them to send early pictures of football games from the stadium to catch early editions. This makes unnecessary the trying trip through traffic. Mr. William McG. Keefe, the esteemed sports editor of the Times-Pic, writes as follows:

If you keep your weather eye peeled these fine afternoons at Tulane stadium (and at Loyola, too, for afternoon games), you'll see businesslike pigeons leaving the field close to the sidelines at the end where a group of photographers and their assistants are gathered.

First one will fly and then another; then maybe two or three in batches.

They are Times-Picayune pigeons—the latest picture-transportation method.

A couple of years back the Times-Picayune, thanks to the brilliance of the late Jimmie Wedell as an aviator, flew pictures to New Orleans from Nashville, Atlanta, Montgomery, Lexington, Ky., New York and other places.

Now the homing pigeons carry films of football plays from Tulane and Loyola in four or five minutes and land with them right atop the building.

They make no mistakes in finding their homes, and do not tarry. They are birds who put duty before pleasure. They stay not for broke nor stop not for stone, like Lochinvar. You strap them in their little knapsack to them and turn them loose and away they sail, making a bee-line for the Times-Picayune building. They ask no reward and cannot be coerced into neglect of their duty.

That isn't all. Private reports have it that Mr. Keefe, who detests crowded traffic, is training 1,000 pigeons. They will, at the end of the game, fly in formation. Each 500 will hold a strap in the nether extremity of which is a ring. Mr. Keefe will grasp the rings, be lifted from the box and transported gently to the roof of the Times-Picayune.

They Looked This Good---Losing a Tough One to Santa Clara

Any doubts that the Auburn Plainsmen did not play fine football on the coast in losing to Santa Clara, one of the nation's great teams, should be dispelled by this picture. It shows

Blake, Auburn halfback, carrying the ball. And note how he is bearing down. Others in the picture are Gantt (32), Auburn tackle; Coughlan (20), Santa Clara end, and Scarborough (35).

Auburn quarter. Note how hard all are running. The facial expressions prove that much. Auburn lost little or no prestige in its 12-to-0 defeat. Associated Press photo.

COLLINS, SIMS TO BE READY, COACHES HOPE

Both Players Run Signals; Hay's Injured Ankle Bad Feature.

By Jack Troy.

A savage defensive drill by the varsity line men arrayed against the Bee team, followed by a spirited offensive scrimmage against the freshmen, was Tech's answer yesterday as preparations were begun for the Auburn game Saturday at Grant field.

Upset by Clemson, the Jackets turned their backs on the defeat and surged back with as fine a spirit as the squad has shown all season.

Mack Tharpe took the varsity line men and set them down opposite the husky Bee players and there was a veritable knockdown, drag-out drill. The line charged the ball carrier. There was no half-hearted effort to break through. The varsity line men charged in and stopped the play.

VERY ENCOURAGING. It was all very encouraging. It looked as if, perhaps, the Jackets would come up to the Auburn game ready and willing to continue their undefeated record in Southeastern conference competition.

One of the very bright features was the fact that Fletcher Sims was ready to the fact that Red Collins is likely to be available, and the Tech situation appears much brighter. Collins ran signals yesterday.

Lawrence Hay was not in uniform yesterday. He suffered an ankle injury against Clemson. Hay will be worked lightly and should be ready on Saturday.

The only other Tech player not participating in the heavy work was Phil Chance, regular tackle, who is still bothered with an attack of boils. Chance, however, was a late rally player that looked good in the Clemson game.

DEFENSE WEAK. There is still a glaring weakness in the Tech defense. It concerns passes.

Bobby Dodd was doing the passing for the Bee team yesterday. And he was connecting with alarming regularity.

Dodd tossed long passes that found their mark in receivers time and again in a non-charging drill. It still seems that Tech's best defense against passing will be the rushing of the passer.

Much time was devoted to stressing off-balance stunts by the line. Tech expects Kilgore to play Saturday and hopes to be prepared.

Collins, Coach Alexander yesterday decided he would use him in the next scrimmage. "We'll be able to tell then just how well he has recovered."

BLOCKING BACK. Collins is able to exert pressure on his knee now and would up the work of yesterday by sprinting the length of the field. It is very encouraging. For Collins is a real blocking back and a pretty potent force back of the line on defense.

Warned by scouts and knowing full well the truth about the team's past experience, the Tech line started digging in. It's not so pleasant being set up in the concrete stands by a line of men who are rushing and running and dazed and wondering what it's all about.

Tech's line has been wondering what it's all about ever since the Kentucky game. True, there was a late rally against Vanderbilt. But there was no sustained drive.

ENOUGH'S ENOUGH. Tech line men anticipate spending most of this Saturday afternoon on the heels of its collective pants. They're drilling on the theory that enough's enough.

That is to say, block, block, block. And forget about trailing the ball-carrier in hopes of receiving a lateral. That does it matter if a line man does receive a lateral and gets knocked for a row of goals by four or five defenders: there's nobody there to block. That's the trouble with the complex lateral game. It costs. Nobody wants to block. Everybody wants to carry the ball.

Well, it doesn't accomplish much in the final analysis if every member of the team has carried the ball and the score is all in favor of the opposing team.

Such sort of reasoning may be all wrong. But the scoreboard seldom, if ever, is.

But you may put it in your pipe and smoke it that Tech is snapping out of it. It has been weeks since the Kentucky game. The honeymoon is over.

And Tech is down to earth. Digging in the final analysis is very much of the team has carried the ball and the score is all in favor of the opposing team.

Auburn Stays in South For Rest of Campaign

Tech, L. S. U. and Florida Will Close Out Gruelling Tiger Grid Card.

AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 2.—Their intersectional combats now over until another campaign, the Alabama Polytechnic Institute Tigers will face only Dixie competition, which is as tough as any found in America, the rest of the season.

The four southern foes now staring Auburn in the face are Georgia Tech, Louisiana State and Florida, three outstanding clubs in the powerful Southeastern conference, and Loyola of the South, one of the strongest non-S. E. C. outfits below the Mason-Dixon line.

Auburn's November stretch of four engagements will be launched against the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets at Grant field in Atlanta next Saturday. The defending champions, L. S. U., will be fought by the Plainsmen at Legion field in Birmingham on November 14 in the south's No. 1 classic for 1935.

Loyola will come to Auburn for the Tigers' most attractive homecoming feature in several years on November 21 and the Florida Gators will be fought at Crampton Bowl in Montgomery, Saturday, November 28.

This year's scrap between Auburn and Tech looms as one of the better clashes of the year. Both clubs are up with the leaders and they look to be about evenly matched in renewing a feud in Atlanta next Saturday that had its baptism in 1934. Next Saturday's bout will be their 40th grid battle.

No Joe Bob Mitchell or Haygood Patterson will be on hand to hand the Plainsmen against the Engineers this year. These two boys were Auburn's peerless heroes in the Tech brawl in 1935 and Coach Jack Meagher has not located any Bengals to take their places.

These last fall is one of the top feats of Dixie football and Patterson's exhibition at tackle was about as near perfect as possible.

Auburn's anti-aircraft guns will be used in the workouts in preparation for Tech and it is very likely that they will have to be called upon regularly if the Yellow Jackets rattle-dazzle the Tech boys.

A flock of touchdowns. The Tigers also will have their passing attack gone over thoroughly in an effort to have both a dangerous aerial and running game in Atlanta. Both Auburn's running and passing attacks, however, have clicked well so far this season, but they should be smoother with the large amount of work they will receive the next few days.

"One result is that persons who want to see spectacular games are driving colleges into a semi-professional attitude toward football."

Resentment against over-emphasis of football has joined with a growing indifference toward the college sport on the part of students, he said. The fellows who get up pep meetings have a hard time getting the boys out now."

The last universities to give up football, Dr. Kirkland said, "will be the big state universities, having 10,000 or more students," because they will be able to hold out longer in the competition with professional football.

"It may be a good many years before college football is abandoned," the chancellor added, "but certainly the tendency now is in that direction."

Goodman Winner In Mexico Amateur

MEXICO, D. F., Nov. 2.—(P)—Johnny Goodman, of Omaha, trounced Percy J. Clifford, Mexican-born Briton, 10 and 8, to win the Mexican amateur golf championship today.

Johnny Dawson, brilliant Chicago golfer, and Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., defending champion in the women's division, were eliminated as the Mexican national amateur golf championship was brought down to the final round.

Two rounds of play in each division saw a hometown boy, Percy J. Clifford, Mexican-born Briton, and Johnny Goodman, of Omaha, Neb., reach the men's finals, and Mrs. Patti Newbold, of Wichita, Kan., and 17-year-old Betty Jameson, of San Antonio, Texas, advance to the last round of the women's tournament.

Villanova Working For Carolina Game

VILLANOVA, Pa., Nov. 2.—(P)—Topped from the list of undefeated and untied football teams by a surprise 6 to 0 defeat at the hands of the Bucknell last week end, Villanova College gridders ran through a long drill today in preparation for the South Carolina game at Columbia, S. C., Saturday.

Coach Maurice "Clipper" Smith directed most of the workout to improving his team's blocking.

The fourth of a series started in 1932 when South Carolina won, 7 to 6. Villanova won in 1933 and 1934. The team will entertain Thursday night and practice at Columbia Friday afternoon.

NEGRO GAME.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 2.—Athens High and Industrial School and Ballard Normal School, of Macon, will play here in a football game at West Park next Friday afternoon. Neither negro eleven has been defeated so far this season.

Lynn Waldorf Discusses Russian Writers, Novelists, Maupassant's Works for Reporter.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—(AP)—It is an inescapable conclusion that Lynn Waldorf, of Northwestern University, is a philosopher as well as a coach. The interviewer felt that he couldn't have chosen a worse time to find out—a few days before Waldorf's boys came to grips with the Minnesota Juggernaut in one of the most crucial football games of the season.

It was a tribute to the sportsman's ship, gentility and serenity of the coach that he refrained from hinting his visitor's good sense was questioned.

Waldorf took a drag on a cigar and, tipped his hefty physique backward in a supple-stemmed chair, grinned and said: "So you want the bookman's slant on my business?"

"Pappy"—a nickname that's a misnomer if there ever was one—made it easy for the caller to send up a few pallid balloons.

LIKES RUSSIAN WRITERS. "Pretty early in life," said the coach, "I developed a liking for the Russian writers, particularly for their short stories."

Line Coach Burt Ingwersen, bulky and breezy, came in on an errand. Maury Kent, freshman coach, was right on top of things with a piece of factitiousness.

"Who's your favorite Russian writer?" he asked.

"My what?" said Ingwersen incredulously.

Kent came back with the sally: "He's more interested in Swedish ends than in all those Russian novelists."

Waldorf's grin expanded, seemed to have an entity all its own. His hair glistened in dappled sunlight, was richly streaked with steel-silver. The color of his hair is the sort that character actors strive for but usually miss.

"To get back to the Russians," he said, "I read Gorki, Turgenyev, Dostoyevsky, Chekhov and Andreiev. Remember Andreiev's 'The Red Laugh' and 'The Seven That Were Hanged'? Powerful stories. My interest in the Russians has not diminished. I rather like the bitter, ironic quality in them."

GUY DE MAUPASSANT. Traveling westward on the literary map Coach Waldorf paused in France and placed his finger upon the name of Guy de Maupassant. He leaped the sea and set apart Ring Lardner.

The Champion—there's a fine story. Yes, sometimes something in Lardner reminds you of the Russians. He also had a bitter quality. I like Sherwood Anderson, too."

Waldorf said his tastes ran definitely toward the shorter tales. "I never finished Gogol's long novel, 'Dead Souls,' though it certainly is a great book. I was also hogged down by Dostoyevsky's 'The Brothers Karamazov.'"

"One of the most interesting things I ever read," he went on, "was a bit of writing not in the field of literature. It was a paper written on assignment by one of my football boys—a boy of foreign ancestry. The thesis was entitled 'Why I Came to College.' It was a conventional theme subject, but the boy put something into it that made a striking document."

STARS MORE STUDIOUS. Asked whether he thought there was any relationship between reading habits and football ability, the coach said: "That is one of those questions that it would be extremely hard to prove either way. I have heard of good athletes who couldn't read at all. Our boys have to read high school algebra, but they do not have much time for reading apart from that closely associated with their studies, particularly during the football season. Some, too, are pre-medics, carrying heavy 'lab' courses."

He said the records showed that football had attracted intellectuals, types, and that he believed the IQ. Maupassant generally was becoming higher.

At the conclusion of the interview one of Waldorf's associates at the university remarked that the expression of the coach's literary leanings was something of a surprise, and an opinion was hazarded that in those preferences, perhaps, lay in some degree the secret of his gift, not the least of which are calmness and humor.

Neyland and Moore Confer on '38 Game

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 2.—(P)—The Press-Scimitar quoted Coach Bernie Moore, of the Louisiana State football team as saying that he and Coach Bob Neyland, of the University of Tennessee, have discussed the possibility of the two teams meeting in Memphis in 1938 or 1939.

The L. S. U. football team passed through here yesterday en route home after a victory over Vanderbilt at Nashville.

Both Players Run Signals; Hay's Injured Ankle Bad Feature.

By Jack Troy.

A savage defensive drill by the varsity line men arrayed against the Bee team, followed by a spirited offensive scrimmage against the freshmen, was Tech's answer yesterday as preparations were begun for the Auburn game Saturday at Grant field.

Upset by Clemson, the Jackets turned their backs on the defeat and surged back with as fine a spirit as the squad has shown all season.

Beechwood Farm Is Described As Typical Country Residence

By Sally Forth.

BEECHWOOD FARM is the name of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Ison's country home, situated on Bull Sluice lake near Roswell. Surrounded by 66 acres of wooded forest, with beech predominating in the thousands of trees, the house sets atop a high hill. Although the home boasts of all the comforts of a city abode, the typical farm idea is reflected in all of its appointments. Of the rambling type, the house is built of pine and occupies one floor, consisting of a large living room, dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms and two screened porches.

A rustic atmosphere is produced by the chestnut wood that forms the interior. A rock fireplace graces one side of the living room, with open book shelves built on each side. A 150-year-old clock ticks lazily away on the stone mantel and other historic objects stand on each side of the fireplace, including a jug made in 1857. Hooked rugs cover the floor and early American pieces furnish the room.

Sally was not surprised to find an old-fashioned organ in one corner of the living room, as Mrs. Ison is a gifted musician and no setting in which she is a part would be complete without some kind of a musical instrument. A hat rack and lamps with reflectors add their share to the room's atmosphere, which speaks the mode of yesteryear.

The same old-fashioned motif is carried out in the other rooms, except in the kitchen, which is modern and up-to-date in every detail. Hammocks, swings and cushioned chairs furnish the porch approached from outside through a stone walk. The walk leads down a sloping hill to the springhouse, the floor of which is formed of stone. The ceiling is built of curly maple and supported by cedar posts. The springhouse is 38 feet long and 18 feet wide, with a huge stone fireplace at one end with big black iron warming ovens on either side. Here the Isons entertain informally at barbecues, picnics, steak fries, etc.

Gourds and strings of red peppers hang from the springhouse ceiling. Stuffed squirrels, wildcats and mounted deer heads give a sports appearance to the scene. The big spring is fed by 50 or more small springs on Beechwood Farm's wooded acres, which form a series of small ponds. Small waterfalls and narrow rustic bridges add picturesque beauty to the farm, which is reached from the main highway through a road one mile in length. Big wooden gates guard the entrance, over which hangs a large farm bell that rings when the gates open.

The stable is a chief feature of Beechwood Farm. Both Mr. and Mrs. Ison are excellent equestrians and are owners of several fine mounts. Their young daughter, Grace, derives much pleasure from riding her donkey, "Hee-Haw-On," who occupies the stables' best stall and whom little Grace frequently hitches to her two-wheeled cart and drives over the farm.

LAST week Sally Forth told you of a young man about town who has quite a collection of feminine photographs in his "morgue." But today there comes to light another young man with a passion for pictures. He carries 25 snapshots in his wallet. And, incidentally, he carries it next to his heart on all occasions.

Just who is his favorite among the belles represented remains to be seen, but at present he seems to be quite perturbed over a debbie. She was called last Friday evening for a date and the young man calling was informed that Miss So and So had suffered a nervous breakdown and all her dates for the week-end festivities had been canceled. Imagine what they both thought when they met face to face at the Halloween ball Saturday evening!

SNAPSHOTS from the Halloween ball at the Driving Club: Anne Irby finding herself on the opposite side of the deb table from her dates, climbing underneath table to reach them. Annette Hightower wearing an orchid in her hair. Laura Maddox, Elkin Goddard, Clare Haverty and Julia Colquhoun arriving in ermine coats. Thomas B. Paine with a boutonniere of lilies of the valley. Nancy Stair, Henry Johnson and Larry DeGivie staging a dog race with the fuzzy toy dogs given as favors to the debs. Nancy Jones with her becoming regency coiffure. The beautiful blonde debbie who will become a bride today showing her exquisite engagement ring. Sasa Smith, the college belle deb, being welcomed for the occasion from Sophie Newcomb. Alice Davis' titian hair offset by her brocade evening coat with handsome white fox collar. Edith Shepherd's piquant beauty.

Misses Byrnes Are Hostesses.

Misses Alice and Boots Byrnes entertained at a Halloween party Saturday at their home, 285 Ninth street, N. E. The house was decorated in Halloween colors and with autumn leaves. This was followed by dancing, a candy hunt, a contest and various games.

The guests represented various characters as follows: Misses Elizabeth Osborne as Martha Washington, Margaret Thompson as an old cowhand, Elaine McElmore as a Hindu nobleman; Harry Binford represented George Washington. All were masked, including Jack Brown, Edwin McGuire, James and Clifton Duke, and Malcolm Manley was Bing Crosby for the evening. Payne played the part, in dress, as an Arab sheik and a southern belle.

A DEDICATION TO RICH'S NEW FASH- ION THIRD FLOOR

By Maurice Rentner,
Eminent Fashion Creator and Head of the Fashion Originators'
Guild of America.

It is not difficult for us to understand, from our years of service as a source of fashion originations of Rich's, Inc., why that institution has achieved such magnificent and enduring success.

A business, just as an individual, has a distinctive personality of its own. There is a type of personality that brings out the best in us just as there is another type that fails to arouse that enthusiasm.

Rich's is possessed of those characteristics that make it a privilege and a personal duty to utilize every available facility of art and industry to assure them of a maximum of service.

Speaking not only as an individual creator but as the chairman of the Fashion Originators' Guild of America, I can attest to the invaluable inspiration given to apparel artistry by this pre-eminent mercantile organization of the South.

Rich's by their wholehearted collaboration literally "commandeer" the best of our skill and facilities and place these at the direct disposal of the store's clientele. This means that to Rich's goes the finest product of our designing ateliers and our factories—merchandise that New York's Fifth Avenue would be proud to present.

A distinguished institution with a name of national note, Rich's has never lost the aspect of intimate hospitality which is so often needlessly sacrificed in the interest of commercial expansion.

Rich's have always tendered such inspiration to their sources of fashion supply. As a result, this great mercantile institution of the South has always at its disposal for the service of its clientele, the designing and production facilities of the pre-eminent apparel creators.

Loyalty and consistency—rare qualities in this era of swift change, have played a major role in the enduring success of the firm. The policy of devotion to the highest standards of goods has been observed for the half-century of the store's existence. The personnel has faithfully interpreted this steadfastness. Miss Gallagher, as well as the members of the Rich family, who act as the store's ambassadors to the fashion world, have achieved an esteem and regard that make every creator nothing less than a member of the organization's fashion staff.

The considerate and ethical manner in which Rich's have dealt with the manufacturing markets enable the store to provide for the women of Atlanta, clothes whose beauty and appeal equal the best that Fifth Avenue, New York, has to offer.

Other fashion creator leaves nothing undone to make certain that Rich's is among the first of the stores of the country to present to its clientele every novel and distinctive style development.

As an originator whose association with Rich's covers more years than I care to mention, I can see just why this organization has attained the regard and affection of its public. I congratulate Rich's upon this newest step in their well-deserved march of progress. I congratulate the people of Atlanta for their recognition of the merit and the service that have underwritten that progress. I congratulate them further upon having, in their city, a retail institution that would properly be a source of pride to any metropolis anywhere in the world. (adv.)

CELEBRATING OPENING OUR NEW FASHION THIRD FLOOR

Mrs. Mankin Speaks To Gen. John Floyd Chapter of 1812 Mothers' Auxiliary of Scout Troop No. 13 To Sponsor Party

Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin, representative-elect to the Georgia legislature from Fulton county, was guest speaker at the October meeting of the General John Floyd Chapter, U. S. D. 1812, which commemorated Constitution Day. Mrs. Mankin's forceful address on "The Federal and State Constitutions" was one of the most interesting ever delivered before the chapter. The historical paper on "Andrew Jackson, Hero of the Battle of New Orleans," by Mrs. C. E. Pittman, chapter historian, was another feature. Miss Lois Biles exhibited relics, among them a large china doll which formerly belonged to a member of the Fielding Lewis family.

Mrs. C. D. Tebo, chairman of patriotic education, reported that the scholarships at Washington Seminary and at North Avenue Presbyterian school are filled. The chapter president, Miss Annie Laurie Hill, announced the gift of a scholarship from Peacock School for Boys. This scholarship and one from the Southern Business University are open to applicants. Applications for these scholarships must be made in writing either to the chapter president, Miss Annie Laurie Hill, 1150 Peachtree street, or to Mrs. C. D. Tebo, 12 East Shadowlawn avenue, Atlanta.

The chapter took cognizance of the failure of some of our citizens to pledge allegiance to the national flag and deploring the disloyalty to the government found in some instances, voted that Dr. Willis Sutton, superintendent of the Atlanta schools, and the board of education be commended for the stand they have taken in requiring the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

The chapter voted to protest against the radio stations allowing Communists and other disloyal citizens to make use of this medium for spreading their propaganda. Members heard plans of the committee to plant constitution trees in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the constitution and agreed to lend their full cooperation in this undertaking.

Realizing the splendid work of Miss Ruth Blair as state archivist and historian of Georgia, and recognizing her ability in this field of endeavor, the chapter voted unanimously that a letter should be sent to the secretary of state, the Honorable John B. Wilson, earnestly requesting her reappointment.

Miss Hill reported the gift of books for the Merchant Marine library and asked for other donations in response to an urgent plea from the librarian, Mrs. Willis Hitzing. It was reported that the General John Floyd Chapter had been one of the hosts organizations honoring Mrs. Thaddeus Jones, of Washington, D. C., national president of the Daughters of Founders and Patriots, at the recent tea given at Cragie House.

Memorial resolutions on the death of Mrs. Slaughter Lathrop, beloved member of the chapter, were read by Mrs. John B. Duncan as chairman of the committee. Addressed to draw up these resolutions, the other members were Mrs. M. J. Crowder, Mrs. James D. Crowder, and Mrs. E. J. Kelly.

The memorial in honor of Mrs. E. J. Kelly Biting, a "Real Daughter," who is buried at Dalton, Ga., takes place in November. Members of the society are requested to watch the daily papers for the announcement of the exact date and hour for this ceremony and for the exercises at Salem school.

My Day By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sunday.—I am glad that I did not have to write a column on Saturday, for from the moment I started out by subway to do a few errands in the early morning, until we got on a train at 10:45 that night, I scarcely had time to think.

The President was to be at the Democratic national headquarters at 10:45 in the morning and I had promised to meet him there. My daughter and I were amused later, when we compared notes on our efforts to enter the Biltmore hotel. The escort surrounding the President's car was just sweeping down Vanderbilt avenue and through Forty-third street, when I started to cross the street at that particular point. All the near-by policemen looked at me very doubtfully. However, by dint of smiling and nodding, I got through. Sometimes the mere assumption that you have the right to go, will get you there.

My daughter had forgotten that her father was to be at the Biltmore and couldn't imagine why there were so many policemen and people standing around. She had to do quite a little explaining before she got by. I wasn't quite sure in which room I was to meet my husband and stepped in one of the offices to ask. Only two people were there, and they were on the point of going to see the President. However, I did reach the proper spot on time.

Afterwards Mrs. Lehman, Mrs. Henry G. Leach, Mrs. William H. Good, Mrs. Caroline O'Day and I attended three luncheons. As we were getting out of the third, Mrs. Leach remarked: "I think we are doing well to be so near schedule time."

With dry humor, Mrs. Lehman replied: "I never realized before that being an hour and a half late was keeping up with one's schedule." Two more meetings and I went home, dressed and packed, had some tea and shepherded our first group of guests into Madison Square Garden at about 7:45. I took a rear seat on the platform, watched for my mother-in-law and my children, who were coming later, and gazed at the great crowd of people.

It was an emotional group that Governor Lehman, the other candidates, and later, the President, faced. Even when we came out of the garden the people in the streets and those leaning out of the windows seemed to have caught some of the emotion over the radio, for in spite of the dark they recognized the President and called out to him.

We arrived at Hyde Park at 1 a. m. on Sunday and in the morning we attended church. Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Bok, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle and Miss Martha Gellhorn lunched with us. Now I must take some of my guests to the train.

NANCY PAGE It Is No Hardship To Make This Star

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

"Not 'cross and crown' but 'star and cross' is the name of this attractive quilt block. It has all sorts of possibilities. You can make the top an all-over one with the diagonal lines, or you can make it a cross joining one another to make a complete cross on the quilt. Or you can put these pieced blocks together with plain blocks of the same size. Or you can use sashing and set the blocks together with that. In that case you use sashing of white or a pale shade of the same color used in the center square blocks that appear black in the picture.

Of course, in actuality, you do not use pieces as dark as those shown in the picture. If you did the pieced top would hit you in the eye when you walked in the room. But if the artist did not show the contrast in his drawing you would not be able to see where one color ended and another one started.

I think it would be nice to use a soft pink for the small squares in the center and then use a pink and white print for the points of the stars. Or you might reverse the arrangement of print and plain.

The members of the Nancy Page quilt club followed their usual procedure. They clipped the picture and directions from the paper and put them in their scrapbook. Then they sent for the direction leaflet. This has a tracing pattern for the various pieces. Each one is traced separately so that cardboard patterns can be cut out and used on the cloth. No seams are allowed. That means that you must add one quarter inch on all sides to the pieces when cutting them. If you will lay the cardboard patterns on the goods and trace their outlines with a sharp pencil you can use these

The actual pattern for "Star and Cross" Quilt Design may be obtained by sending 3 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Nancy Page, care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Atlanta Debutantes via THE ZODIAC by Bernice Denton Pierson

"By Heaven, methinks it were an easy leap, to pluck bright fire from the face of heaven, Or, to dig the bottom of the deep, Where fathom-line could never touch the ground, And pluck up drowned honour by the locks."

By FREDERICK GARDNER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Backsliding utilities started the stock market on the downward path today but a brisk rally in mining issues served to cushion the drop.

Many traders shifted to the side-lines, brokers said, pending outcome of the election. Others exhibited a little nervousness over the spread of the shipping strike.

Business news, however, continued to bolster sentiment and selling was not especially urgent at the time of the session. Transfer of 1,601,710 shares against 1,677,820 last Friday. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 4 of a point to 71.

Metal stocks came to the front for substantial gains when the export price of copper was given another lift to a new top since January, 1931. Reports that an increase in the domestic price was being considered also aided the group. In addition International Nickel continued the improvement in the nonferrous market by increasing its dividend from 35 to 40 cents a share.

While the steel was not particularly well, they failed to reflect an estimate of American Iron & Steel Institute that this week's mill operations will be up 4 of a point at 74.7 per cent of capacity.

Andes Copper, controlled by Anaconda and whose market is usually characterized as "thin" in the commission houses, jumped 7 3/4 points to a new high at 34 7/8. The year's low was 9.

Others up fractions to a point or more included Anaconda at 49 3/8, Inspiration 13, Miami 11 1/4, Calumet & Hecla 13, International Nickel 12 1/4, Cerro de Pasco 6 1/4, American Smelting 4 5/8, Howe Sound 1 1/2, United States Smelting 7 1/8, and Standard Oil of New Jersey 60.

Among losers of 2 or more points were Consolidated Edison 64 1/4, North American 22 1/4, Public Service of New Jersey 41 1/4, American Water Works 26 1/4, American Telephone & Telegraph 179 1/4, Union Pacific 143 3/4, Allied Chemical 230 1/4, American Alkali Chemical 230 1/4, Union Pacific 143 3/4, United States Steel 156 1/4, Douglas Aircraft 77 1/4, United States Smelting 7 1/8, and Standard Oil of New Jersey 60.

TARZAN AND THE MAYAN GODDESS No. 110

When her threats had failed to terrify Tarzan, proud Zalya fumed. Despite this man's strange attraction for her, she wanted to bend him to her will, to show her domination. Now a husky voice sounded at her shoulders: "Does your majesty forget the jaguar pit?"

While the ape-man was clutched in the trap of the monsters, D'Arnot was gaining strength under the tender care of Ula Dale. The girl's pity for the fever-stricken airman was growing into deep affection, and D'Arnot regarded her with grateful fondness.

As night dropped down on the weird, gloomy forest, he saw helpless fear creeping into her face, for neither Tarzan nor Ragan had returned to his camp. His deep concern for her, and her fascination for him made particularly difficult the step duty to perform!

For a long time the girl sat by D'Arnot's side. When she believed he was asleep, she slipped quietly away to her own quarters. But D'Arnot was not asleep. Ula had hardly gone when he arose stealthily. He had a debt to pay—a dangerous duty to perform!
